BUT THEY HAVE COME HERE FOR SOMETHING MORE THAN TO SHOW THAT THEY ARE WELL DRESSED-REPORT OF THE WASHINGTON EX-CHANGE-OTHER BUSINESS TRANSACTED.

The appearance of the convention of the merchant tailors' national exchange when assembled this morning in the red parlor of the Ebbitt House for the second day's session showed quite a marked contrast with that of yesterday. The personnel of the delegates was the same and the contrast lay in the change of garments. In honor of the opening session yesterday those who attended appeared dressed in garments of unexceptionable cut and stylish colors. Today most of them were able to repeat their triumphs of yesterday and to show to the eyes of admiring experts that all their taste and skill was not expended in one suit of clothes. In fact, most of the deiegates make a point when they attend these annual gatherings to bring a trunk full of hand-

SUITS FOR EVERY OCCASION.

They have garments for morning wear, evenwell-dressed men, and the changes made possible owing to the extensive wardrobes at the command of the members is not the least interesting feature of the convention. It goes without saying that the clothes worn by the delegates are no ordinary garments. They are devised by men who stand at the head of the sartorial profession in this country, and, as every one knows, America leads the world in the production of well-made clothes of good design. These America leads the world in the production of well-made clothes of good design. These men are creators, original designers, and in the clothes which they wear are illustrated to a large extent their latest ideas. A merchant tailor must always be on the alert to originate, and if he isn't his productions, as far as style and cut are concerned, become very similar to ready-made clothes. Most any well-dressed man can see in this convention the variety of styles and colors that he will have a chance to select his own wardrobe from for the next year. For this reason it may from for the next year. For this reason it may be said that a visit to the convention by those who desire to be well dressed will have an him celebrated as a EDWIN N. DOLL.

from the various exchanges. Some of the reports were verbal and others were written.

The Washington exchange reported through its president, Mr. Heiberger, that during the past year the membership had in the past year the membership had in-creased 45 per cent, and that therefore the exchange was entitled to another delegate. Next year they hope to be able to be entitled to another delegate. The feature, however, of the report was a number of important resolutions and recommendations. One of the resolutions thanked the Treasury Department for the efforts made to stop the smuggling of clothes from Canada. Also a resolution indorsing the bill to prevent the manufacture of clothing in unhealthy places and the sale of such clothing. THANKED FOR ITS INTEREST.

The report was accepted with thanks to the Washington exchange for their interest in the work of the national body and the recommendations were referred to the appropriate committees. Mr. Heiberger believes that the national body has important duties to perform and he likes to see all the members show an active interest. His remaks in this line were rather forcibly and plainly put and exception was taken to it by some of the members on the winter of 1886 the question of the formation of a merchant tailors' exchange in Boston was agitated, and he took great interest in trand agitated, and he took great interest in the matter of 1886 the question of the original organizers. Such a purpose, however, he promptly repudiated and his disclaimer was accepted by the convention and business resumed its even course.

In one of the reports of the exchange it was stated that in addition to keeping a credit list, or, in other words a list of those persons who were in the habit of considering that it is not important to pay their mendations on a number of important matters, was read and acted upon. It was decided to place the trade school in operation in New York city under the charge of the national body.

But even this theory is not advanced by many The fact that he was last seen with two trange men leads some friends to believe that he went off with these men and some even fear that he has been foully dealt with.

The police, from experience in other similar cases, do not believe that anything has happened to the missing man, but that he is in some other city, and that he undoubtedly gets amusement out of the stories put in circulation about him.

MADE-UP GARMENTS. The Committee Now Examining Them-Other

The convention of the Custom Foremer Tailors' Association resumed its sessions this morning at 9:30 o'clock in the tea room of Willard's. There was a large attendance present, and a considerable amount of important business was transacted. Mr. Charles A. Hunt. corresponding secretary, gave a brief report of what he had been called upon to do during the past year. It was decided to postpone the report of Mr. H. E. Parker, treasurer of the association, till the last meeting, in order that he might carry his accounts through to the end of the convention. A communication was read from a gentleman who regretted his inability to be present to exhibit an invention of his by means of which a garment could be cut in twenty minutes without the use of a tape measure or square.

Mr. Du Nah objected to the reception of the communication on the ground that he did not want the association bulldozed by any man who claimed anything so foolish as the ability to make a perfect-fitting coat without trying it on. Mr. Du Nah's remarks were received with applause and the communication was carefully examination. While they were out Mr. Robert Phillips of Chicago, recording secretary of the association, was given an opportunity to speak in the interest of the Phillips Publishing Company, which publishes a trade magazine for the custom tailors of the country. He explained the progress that has been made by the tailors of the United States in the past three years on the ground that intellectuality had taken the place formerly occupied by jealousy. He said the life of the trade lies in springing new styles on the customers all the time. If new styles on the customers all the time. If this were done the mechanics of the trade 1,500,000 in the next five years. To do this the cutters must act as a unit.

Mr. Phillips, in conclusion, expressed the gratification at the kindly treatment accorded to the convention by the press of Washington, and said that they had never received mirer treatment from the trade press than they had press was passed.
